Chaitra Betageri is an associate in Glaser Weil's Litigation Department. Ms. Betageri focuses her practice on complex commercial disputes and white collar criminal defense, including government investigations. Her experience includes representing individuals and companies in all phases of litigation in state and federal court.

Prior to joining Glaser Weil, Ms. Betageri was a litigation associate at a law firm in Los Angeles, where she handled a broad range of disputes, including civil rights, employment, and business litigation matters. She was previously a litigation associate at a law firm in San Francisco, where she represented large financial institutions in mortgage banking, banking operations, and class action matters. Before joining the private sector, Ms. Betageri worked at the Marin County Public Defender's Office, where she represented clients charged with misdemeanors.

Ms. Betageri received her law degree from Berkeley Law, where she competed on the Trial Team and was a member of the Berkeley Business Law Journal and the Boalt Hall Women's Association. Ms. Betageri received her undergraduate degree from the University of California, Berkeley. As an undergraduate, she coached high school debate teams and participated in student government.
